

LIBRARY IN A LAPTOP: Bloemfontein Celtic coach Ernst Middendorp shows one of the pupils how the software works.

Telkom and Celtic lead the way for kids

BECKER SEMELA

TEACHING and learning at the Nozala Intermediate School in Mangaung will never be the same again.

The school received a donation of 26 laptops and internet facilities worth R200 000 by the Telkom Foundation and Bloemfontein Celtic.

Speaking to The New Age, Nozala school principal Vuyisile Mpinga said the computers will help pupils a lot with research and projects without having to go to the libraries.

"It's a stroke of good fortune that will have a lasting impact not just on the lives of the pupils presently at the school, but those to come in the years to follow," Mpinga said.

"Our congratulations go to the Nozala Intermediate School as they accepted their donation and our thanks to Telkom Knockout for providing this platform with which we can help schools. We believe in giving pupils the best possible chance to excel in their studies and ultimately create a better life for themselves and their families," Kunene said. He said there was no question that by providing the computers, they were giving them the tools and a platform to do just that.

"It is now up to them to take this fantastic opportunity and make the most of it. We wish the pupils the very best for their future," Kunene said.

Bloemfontein Celtic CEO, Khumbulani Konco, said even though they were